I have an array that looks like this: arr = [[1, 2], [3, 4]] I want to turn this into a numpy array that looks like this: np.array([[1, 2], [3, 4]]) I think it can be done by merging the arrays using numpy.concatenate() but I can't get it to work. I've tried np.array(np.concatenate(arr)) and np.array(np.concatenate(arr, axis=0)) and they don't work. Ghani's prime minister, a former president, said the term had "an ugly connotation" and
