Treatment of zebrafish larvae with dexamethasone (DEX) induces a profound increase in expression of several tyrosine hydroxylase (Th) transcripts. This can be detected by real-time RT-PCR as early as 6h post DEX treatment. We confirm the specificity of the dexamethasone-treated specific brain transcript (dexastatin) by transgenic reporter analysis in zebrafish. Furthermore, the increase in Th expression that follows DEX treatment is completely blocked by both the glucocorticoid and mineralocorticoid receptor antagonists RU486 and spironolactone. When present at 1µg/ml, DEX alone can induce the expression of a number of other genes. Of these a majority are from the cytochrome P450 family, a few are involved in thyroid hormone metabolism, and a further nine genes are transcription factors including the nuclear receptor subfamily, 3, group C, member 1 (nr3c1). Taken together, these results demonstrate that DEX can induce a broad response on several genes.PAYDAY 2 is coming soon to Steam.
